Theatre at Barton presents “MisCast in Concert”

This show is full of surprises! What could be more fun than hearing some of your favorite Broadway songs unexpectedly performed by an actor who would not typically be considered “ideal” for that role? This production will break down cultural barriers, age stipulations and gender reference, allowing each performer the freedom to explore unlimited interpretations of well-loved, popular musical hits. Join us for this “one-night only” special event, showcasing Barton College students and our talented community family and friends. Support this fund-raising event to celebrate our local talent and kick off the academic year.

November 9-12

Theatre at Barton presents “Lady Susan” by Rob Urbinati

This fall production is a scintillating story of manners, love, and suspicion, featuring a conniving rivalry for the same eligible gentleman with all of the expected wit and humor supplied by the essence of Jane Austen’s novella. A charming and fast-paced period comedy, Lady Susan, a young widow, flees London against rumors of an affair, arriving at the country home of her obliging brother-in-law and his untrusting wife. Surprise uninvited guests arrive in the form of a handsome well-to-do suitor, her willful daughter, her chatty confidante, and a dimwitted bachelor. Will the truth lead to complete family disintegration, more loss or true love?
